概要	The objective of this course is to prepare students to experience the demands and atmosphere of higher-education classrooms in English speaking environments. The course will focus on listening for particular structures and signals in English, taking accurate and concise notes, participating actively in academic discussions, and creating and delivering presentations.
授業の進め方・方法	Each textbook unit will be divided into two days. On Day One, students will listen to an academic lecture in English and apply a new listening strategy for recognizing language structures or signals. And, the students will take notes on these lectures. On Day Two, the students will engage in academic discussions about the lecture topics and practice various presentation skills. After two units have been covered in four lessons, the fifth lesson will be spent preparing presentations with themes based on one of the 2 units covered. Then, in the sixth lesson, each student must perform the presentation they prepared. In total, that is 5 presentations in one year. Each presentation will be about 5 minutes.
注意点	Active participation in English is essential for completing this course successfully. A high-intermediate level of English is required to perform well in this class. 合格の対象としない欠席条件(割合) 1/4以上の欠課。
